Gov't Promotes Military Research

Scarborough Campus' underfunding problems may be over as a result of a decision to reopen a long dormant 'military/civilian' command centre concealed beneath Scarborough Campus.

A rental fee for the use of the command centre will be paid by both the City of Scarborough and the Department of National Defence. This will provide two million dollars over the next four years. The money is expected to be used to finance the building of Scarborough Hall.

Director of Physical Services, Rob Blyind, was absolutely ecstatic saying, "This raises half of the remaining four million dollars needed for the completion of Scarborough Hall." The U of T's 100 million dollar fundraising effort has only committed 3 million dollars.

The area to be reopened is the long dormant command centre which was built deep beneath the S-Wing when the college was originally built.

Drawing from recently declassified documents claimed under the Access to Information Act, The Undergrund was able to trace the history of this previously secret project.

In the 1960's, the Department of National Defence, working with the Municipalities, embarked on a program of "National Survival". This program involved building bomb shelters and communication and command bunkers to improve the Emergency Planning scheme then in place.

Under Prime Minister L.B. Pearson's Administration, $200,000 was given to the University of Toronto so that it could design and build the command centre under Scarborough Campus. Borough of Scarborough officials could then relocate here in the event of a national emergency. As well, a military command post was incorporated into the college's design. Militia units in Toronto at that time, were restructured to form regional "National Survival Units".

When the college was completed in 1967, the infrastructure for the command complex was in place. Only equipment and furnishings were needed to render it fully operational.

However, in 1968, with the election of Prime Minister Pierre Eliott Trudeau, the whole concept of "National Survival" was shelved and the 2/3 completed complex was moth-balled.

In 1984, with the election of the Progressive Conservative government, Prime Minister Brian Mulroney promised to improve Canadian defence. As part of Defence Minister, Perrin Beatty's new White Paper, Defence and Emergency Planning was pushed into the forefront of the national agenda. The revitalization of the Militia is an important branch of Mr. Beatty's defence policy.

As Mr. Beatty stated in a recent press conference, "Our overdue policy of restructuring both urban and national defence will result in a re-activation of existing facilities such as the one present at Scarborough College. Surplus space can also be used by a new Air Reserve unit we wish to install in Scarborough."

When contacted, Mr. Blyind noted that "Equipment has been arriving steadily since late November. We have even conducted secret 'user-trials' during the Christmas and Reading Week vacations."

Academic Dean G.P. Hayse looks forward to a long summer of reviewing each academic department as his contribution to the transformation of this arts and science college.

"All academic departments will have to be reprogrammed to once again focus in on military related learning and research," he stated. In addition, Hayse expects an increase in research grants resulting from this new perspective on academia.

Principal Villiams strongly denied that academic freedom was being sold out for a few million dollars. However Villiams later admitted that "It would have happened eventually... I receive my orders from Simcoe Hall and I have very little say in these matters. In fact they have even decided to discontinue the entire shuttle-bus service so that additional funds can be generated for the construction of Scarborough Hall."

Nude Exams

by Gothic Brighton

In an attempt to crack down on cheating, the Scarborough College Academics Affairs sub-committee on standing has passed a by-law requiring that all student write their exams in the nude.

"We realize that we're sticking our heads out on this one, but something had to be done to combat a major problem," stated Chairman Mao. "And besides, it'll be a great way to get to know people, which is what this college is all about anyway."

However, eveyone wasn't as thrilled about the plan as Chairman Mao. Fundamentalist Christians across the college appear to be outraged. "It's like a return to Adam and Eve," quipped one protestor, "but with a lot more snakes."

The move came after pressure was put on administration by the professors who felt that the level of cheating was getting out of hand. "It's not that I mind cheating per se," said one lecturer, "but when they use methods that I never tried myself, then it becomes personal."

Interestingly, the bill was passed in Council by a vote of 8-6, with all 8 male members voting in favour of the proposal. "I don't want this to be construed as a sexist kind of solution," suggested Chairman Mao, "but let's face it, it sure would be nice to see some good hooters during a boring exam."

Perhaps the greatest lobby against the by-law has come from the CSA (circumcised students' association). At a recent cocktail party, their president Sawl O'Reilly tipped me off about their concern.

"It's not that we're poor sports," said O'Reilly, "but imagine, for example, how much easier it would be to hide cheat notes which you wrote on your neck if you were wearing a turtleneck instead of a button-down."

The new rule is to be implemented during this year's final examinations. While this may be cause for an uprising among many student groups, it should be a plus for biology majors. "It will undoubtedly help me with my anatomy exam," suggested one student. Lets hope he can rise to the occasion, while the rest at least grin and bare it.

Astronomical

by Bramley Slouch

Science Editor, Sol R. Plexes of the University of Toronto's (U of T) largest student newspaper, The Varsity claims he has made an astronomical discovery which has shattered the existing Copernican theory of the solar system established in 1543.

Plexes says that the 16th century scientist's theory, which states that the earth revolves around the sun, is incorrect.

"My theory is based upon the Medieval theory that it is the earth, not the sun that is the centre of the universe," said Plexes.

"Actually, they were only half-right" he revealled. "If you consider Newton's gravitational theory in context with Copernicus' and the centrifugal forces which encompass the earth, the obvious conclusion is that The Varsity not the sun, is the centre of the universe."

"We've suspected it for years," guffawed Editor-in-chief Jock Nagler. "Some people think Sol is way out in left field on this one" snorted Nagler, "but he's actually really an ace Science guy and a real credit to our Varsity team," he added.

Associate News Editor Earache Geringas, on the other hand has some doubts about the discovery. "The actual concept is not necessarily erroneous, it is simply that I am not willing to go on record endorsing a man who is the zenith of Mongoloid reasoning" he rationalized.

"Besides" added Geringas, "the man doesn't even have a gold card."

In the meantime Plexes is seeking financial aid from the U of T administration to establish the academic group, The Varsity, the Solar System and you to enlighten ignorant students throughout the university.

Underaged to be Allowed in Pub

Candice, Christopher and Stephanie, three young grade 13 students refresh themselves in the Pub. The three were jubilant about the Ontario Government's ruling to allow underaged university students into alcoholic university establishments. Said Christopher, middle, "I can do without a lot of things in this world but take my beer away and I go crazy. Besides," he grinned, "it's a great place to pick up chicks."

Beaver Ousted, Irate "In"sted

by Shannon Schneidler

Beaver Foods will no longer dam the Pub in the 1988/89 academic year.

Instead, Scarborough College Personell Manager June Dope has re-hired ex-Scarborough Campus Pub manager and present SUC Hangar manager, Irate Baptiste.

The unprecedented maverick move occured when Dope decided to take matters into her own hands after she was denied entrance into the Pub without proper identification. "It's disgusting the way they treat people in that...that...that Pub!" railed Dope. "Beaver has got to go!"

When asked why Baptiste was hired less than 24 hours after Beaver was fired Dope answered, "Well, I admire her professionalism, her frugality and her friendliness" gurgled Dope. "And besides," she added, "I haven't had a good squash partner in months."

SCSC President Hanif Sarangatang lapsed into a state of shock at the news but was rumoured to vow to stay on as SCSC President for one more year.

David Gossip, SCSC Vice-President of Finance, however, was concerned about the re-hiring because of the great financial losses the Pub suffered two years ago under Baptiste's management. "I don't want to get picky but...I...I...I mean, well...what I really want to say is that...I...I..oh heck! I guess $20,000 isn't that much of students' money," assured Gossip.

When questioned Baptiste simply uttered "I'm just glad to be working" over and over again.

Hanif Sarangi - Man or Myth. This present SCSC president has been the focal point of controversy for three fiery years at Scarborough Campus. How does this legend spend his weekends anyway? In a rare and, until now, unreleased interview, Sarangi describes his shocking and revealing habits that have characterized his checkered career at Scarborough in...

A Saturday in the Life of Hanif Sarangi

Morning

I get up and I let the dog out, so it doesn't pee on carpet. I go back to bed for a nap.

For breakfast I eat wheaties and drink ovaltine.

In the morning I help mother with the laundry. I match up the socks and usually help sort the family's underwear.

I play road hockey with all the 9-year olds on the block.

Afternoon

I go to Edward's Garden to look at all the pretty flowers.

I always make sure that I'm home at 1 p.m. to watch WWF wrestling. Yes, I admit it, I'm a Hulkamaniac.

Sometimes I take my dad's car to the Esso car wash. It's so scary when the water comes streaming at the window shield - I practically jump into the back seat!

I often go to the used comic bookstore to see if they have any new Aqua-Man issues in. I never figured out how he could talk underwater.

Walk over to the public library to take back books - you know I haven't had an overdue book in 3½ years.

Then I stroll over to Cedarbrae Mall to look at the puppy dogs in the pet store, and have a double scoop ice cream cone at Laura Secord. My favourite flavour is vanilla.

Then armed with a fist full of quarters, I walk into the bowling alley for some serious video games. I love Space Invaders.

Sometimes I just spend the afternoon in my room listening to my Partridge Family albums, and work on my Doodle Art posters.

Personal hygiene is very important to me so Saturday is the day I pick the lint out of my navel and clip my toenails. I used to bite my toenails, but I don't do that anymore. Oh, I also trim my moustache on Saturdays.

Night

And then, oh boy, Saturday night I get a bunch of popcorn and watch those Italian movies. Boy are those girls ever ...

EDITORIAL

Funding Stinks

Funding Shmunding. I am sick and tired of hearing about all these wimps talk about how much more money they need for a decent university education.

Well let me tell you something about underfunding. I think it's great! What a great excuse to go to boozer rallies while toasting wienies and telling ghost stories?

I tell ya, sometimes on a Friday night me and the buddies go down to Queen's Park just to bitch at the pigeons and feed the politicians...and sometimes we even do the reverse. It just depends on whether we go to the Brunswick that night.

And just look at what would happen if we actually did get funding. Imagine ten students per classroom!!!Holy*!@!!!I mean the prof would actually get to know my name! Do you know what kind of trouble that would bring?!

I mean, there's something to be said for those 250 student classrooms. It's a great place to meet lunch and eat people...and vice versa.

Who needs all of those university programs anyway. All you really need is philosophy and psychology. I mean, they have the best parties.

And what about those computer courses. Can you imagine a classroom filled with new computers? I just got used to the old ones...and I'm in my fourth, well fifth, year.

What a drag labs would be if there were no broken parts to play wargames with. I can see it now. We'll be buying intellectual mice and real pigs instead of fetus'.

And who really needs up-to-date libraries or writing labs! I mean if God intended for us to be bookworms She wouldn't have created pubs, eh?

I think if students need extra money they can sell chocolate bars or light bulbs or something. Hey, if it's good enough for Boy Scouts, it's good enough for me! In fact, we can develope a system where you have to sell at least 5000 chocolate bars by your fourth year and if you don't, then you're history. And you can say goodbye to the degree.

Don't you worry Mr. Peterson. Stand your ground and don't give those snivelling, belly crawlers a penny more. You're not alone in your fight for underfunding. Ya got me and my buddies behind ya 100%. After all we are the future of Canada.

Hot Tips For Your Summer Vacation

As travel consultant here at the Undergrund, I thought we might give you some hot tips on this year's cool holiday destinations. Here is our top five list of places to see in '88.

1. The Persian Gulf: a host of water activities, breath-taking views and wonderfully musical people. Travel tip - do what they say and no one will get hurt.

2. Belfast, Northern Ireland: a dazzling downtown features hourly fireworks displays and plenty of fashionable khaki outfits. Travel tip - never say, "Gee, that Maggie Thatcher is my kind of babe."

3. Afghanistan: home of beautiful rugs and hound dogs. Come for Gorbachev's message of Glasnost as one of his soldiers opens up your skull with a blast from his automatic weapon. Travel tip - Leave your "Bring Back Ronnie for a third term" button at home.

4. Panama, Central America: see a blocked canal, a petrified president and a general who thinks he's Conrad Black. Travel tip - Forget traveller's cheques, bring a printing press.

5. Columbia: how could such a warm country have so much dazzling snow? Travel tip - If someone appears to offer you some high-grade icing sugar, pretent to lose your sweet tooth.

I was very much saddened to hear that some non-affiliated members had apparently taken it upon themselves to take brush and paint to the walls of your hallowed Pub. I wanted it made perfectly clear that those responsible for the aforementioned redecorating were in no way associated with our union, nor did we, have fore-knowledge of their actions.

However, after having came to your institution and seen for myself the products of these master artists, I feel it only fitting that I offer any of them free membership in our organization. Seldom have I seen such divergent range of styles, or such a creative use of colour. I feel that any person who can do that is fully deserving of a place in our organization.

The Undergrund is published by relatives of the Keebler elves, a subversive band of extortionists. They are partially funded by the unconscious students of Scarborough Campus by way of a direct fee levy. Additional funds are obtained through their ties with various groups involved in organized crime.

The Board of Directors is supposed to be responsible for the management, financial policies and editorial integrity of the paper. The views expressed in The Undergrund are often those of the Editor and the Board of Directors.

The Undergrund intends to undermine the distinguished character of all the students and faculty at Scarborough Campus, regardless of race, sex, or academic discipline. As hard as we try, we have no biased preference to any one group on campus.

Being complete morons the Editor and the members of the Board of Directors do not wish to take any responsibility for any material printed in these pages (except for Vanger who insists that she is pretty bright).

ENTERTAINMENT

Flamingos Fantastic

by Nigel Artsman Esq

Screaming Flamingos, the new play by noted Abassyian playwright, Sado Krule, currently showing at the Andy Worhol Memorial Theatre, is to say the least fantastically brilliant and good.

The play revolves around "Spike", an itinerant hair dresser and part-time pro-wrestler, who is travelling across the Swiss Alps, with his pet aardvark, Clarence, to commemorate the two thousandth and seventeenth anniversary of Hannibals epic journey.

During his trip, Spike meets up with various characters, each of whom imparts upon him some piece of wisdom or advice, that eventually helps him understand the geopolitical situation in Central America. The first person Spike meets is Wendy, a former Hell's Angel's biker, returning from his botched sex change operation.

It seems that rather than having changed his sex, the doctors had merely changed his socks, but due to a clerical error, had neglected to inform him! Blissfully unaware of his non-sex change, Wendy (played convincingly by Filthy-Dog Williams) accompanies Spike all over the Alps, hoping to attend a Judy Garland impersonator's convention.

Next Spike, Clarence and Wendy meet Hubert, a schizophrenic undertaker forced to flee his native Nepal, due to his annoying habit of repeatedly burying his clients and then digging them up. Hubert, who is engaged in burying a dead scuba diver he found by the side of the road, is much too busy to stop and chat with the travellers, so they walk past him in silence.

Olaf, the next person they encounter is a Viking on his way to Vienna, to become a chartered accountant at a prestigious Austrian Burlesque house and leper colony. The group, caught in the middle of a fierce blizzard, are forced to seek refuge in a local village.

They are given shelter, but are told that there is no food to spare, and in one of the most touching scenes in the play Spike is forced to disembowel his aardvark, Clarence, so that his friends might eat.

Meanwhile, Olaf is having his own problems fighting his natural instincts. Even though he tries to control himself by reciting Duran Duran lyrics backwards, he eventually succumbs to his drives; he loots and burns the village, while drinking heavily. The travellers, in a scene highly reminiscent of the chase sequence from the original Frankenstein, are forced to flee the burning town, pursued by the angry villagers.

The play continues on like this for several hours, with Spike meeting a wide assortment of people, including Alice, a very confused Vietnam vet, Maurice, a persistent insurance salesman with offensive body odour and Abdul, the dyslexic opera singer.

The play itself is fantastic, with Krule drawing a lot of metaphors with his characters and their stories. Wendy, for example shows that gender is only skin deep, and easily changeable given the right walk and make-up. Olaf (Dudley Smegma) is brilliant, as the homicidal barbarian trying to be something he isn't.

Clarence, the aardvark (Norma Jean boogar), clearly illustrates the canabalization and exploitation of the third world by the capitalist right-wing lackies of the west. But of course, the star of the show is Spike (Lefty Broncowitz Jr.), a delightful example of everyman. He expresses a feeling we all have had, nausea, diarrhea and menstrual cramps.

Krule's play is destined to go down in the history with Chaucer's Cantabury Tales, Shakespeare's Hamlet, and Chuck Barrie's Gong Show.

Notice Of Assessment with your fees invoice. If you apply for O.S.A.P. by June 15 but do not receive your O.S.A.P. Notice Of Assessment prior to registration, go to the Office of Student Awards to obtain a tuition fee deferral form (see instructions in the fees information booklet).

If you apply for O.S.A.P. after June 15, 1988 you will not receive a tuition fee deferral and you will be expected to pay tuition fees from your own funds prior to registration.

CSCR Goes Top 40

by Thick Assol

CSCR has finally relented. After years of scathing criticism, various bomb warnings and threats of being tickled to death, Scarborough College Radio, known for "serving a few introverted punk elites", is going top 40.

Over the years, the station has established a reputation for playing what has alternately been described as, "hard-core punk", "modern experimental muddle" and "neo-pseudo-ultra-psycho-who knows-who cares-nouveau-punk junk music".

But as displaced station manager, resident intellect, and weekend mass murderer, Charles Ng stated in a teary communique last Friday, all that is going to change.

"Pressure has been brought to bear by SCSC Communications Commissioner D'nis (boogie) Blubberbutt, thousands of frothing mad students and my mother to change the format of CSCR," sniffed Ng.

"We have been told to revise our programming to include artists such as Madonna, Tiffany and Debbie Gibson, or become autonomous and risk seeking a direct fee levy through a referendum."

Faced with such a dire alternative the station has decided to acquiesce. However, given the station's new format, program director Greg Healer and Ng will resign their duties forthwith. "CSCR will no longer be a place for men with earrings," whimpered a dejected, but very trendy, Healer.

Along with the change in format CSCR will regularly feature "inspiration" shows hosted by SUC representative Darryl McBowel. "I've been planning great stuff to go along with my anti-fat show" chortled McBowel. "Like an anti-thin show, an anti-tall show, an anti-disabled show, an anti-abled show, an anti-children show the list just goes on and on...I want to be the Jim and Tammy of Scarborough Campus" gurgled McBowel.

Confronted with the "McBowel" change Healer reasoned, "well, we thought since all aspects of taste were being dissolved..."

As of yet on immediate successor has been named to either CSCR executive post.

Student reaction to the news varied. "Like, it was about time they changed" contorted a diehard pop-rock fan, Madonna Smith. Another student defended the station by voicing his free spirited opinion and shouted, "CSCR Who?!?!"

However, Healer believes that students will be the ultimate losers. "You'll see. Just you watch. A few weeks of George Michael's Father Figure and they'll come crawling, no begging for a return to Scraping Fetus off the Wheel, Big Pig, and Black Flag. Mark my words."

Exhibit Blast

by B. Rubble

There was an explosion that nearly demolished the Scarborough Art Gallery, however, it strangely went unnoticed for nearly a month. While the bang was heard by Campus Police, no record of the incident was made.

"I heard a blast down there, and went to investigate," stated officer Ewen McEwen. "But all I found was rubble, paint all over the place, and lots of fallen timber - you know, nothing out of the ordinary."

It seems that none realized the explosion had occurred. In fact, a full two weeks after the blast, first year Arts students were continuing to visit the exhibit, and were heard to describe the work as "marvellous", "strong linearly" and "inspiring".

When asked for comment, the fourth year student whose reputation as an artist was solidified by the incident, refused to discuss the situation. However, reliable sources have disclosed that the student was initially thrilled upon receiving an 'A' for his work, but immediately went into shock when told to reproduce the work for a showing at the Art Gallery of Ontario.

Upon learning of the blast's involvement in the exhibit, the Fine Arts sub-committee on Academics considered providing an undergraduate course in explosives. Asked whether the course will have any pre-requisites, Dean Martin responded "no, as long as the student is motivated, intelligent, and has some formal militia training or watches the A-Team, he or she will be admitted."

SPORTS

Maple Leafs Win Stanley Cup

by Chick Dunigan

In an extraordinary display of skill and science, the Toronto Maple Leafs have captured the Stanley Cup for 1987. But you may ask, "Hey, didn't the Oilers win it already." This big guy would have to respond, "Hey, you're right." You see, the Oilers won it, then lost it, thanks to some nifty moves by the best owner in professional sports, Harold Ballard.

The setting was Ballard's yacht, "The Prince". The players: Ballard, Oiler owner Peter Pocklington and WWF wrestler Ted Dibiase, "The Million Dollar Man".

In a remarkable six-way deal, Pocklington agreed to give title to the Cup for the remainder of the year to Ballard in exchange for the rights of defenceman Carl Brewer and a row of grey seats for a 1989 Leaf home game against Vancouver.

Dibiase would then promise that Andre the Giant would wrestle only in Alberta until a replacement for former great Wayne Gretzkey (who used to pack the Edmonton arena) could be found. The Alberta government would then match any surplus funds generated by Andre to sponsor Dibiase's bid to buy the Papacy.

Yesterday, the House of Commons voted unanimously to allow the deal to go through. Minister of Finance, Michael Wilson told The Undergrund that "the deal would promote economic growth through job creation, a strengthened dollar, and an inflow of foreign capital."

Scarb Denied Funding

by Ima Gossip

The Dean of Everything Including the Kitchen Sink at The University of Toronto (U of T) Hugh G. Rection, announced today that funding for athletics at Scarborough Campus will be denied, effective September 1988. Reactions to the decision have ranged anywhere from projectile vomitting to angered pelvic thrusts.

Dean Rection defends the cutback. "We just can't afford to spend the millions of dollars in costs to have a bunch of kids running around in sweaty clothes." When asked why Scarborough had been selected as the only college to be denied funding, Rection grunted, "Well...we just don't like it."

Support for the closing down of the athletic facilities came from numerous sources. Professor O. Verwate, anti-athletic lobbyist, was jubilant. "Finally," he grinned, "there'll be no more toned, aerobically sprite young bodies thrusting their pert breasts and tight asses in my face when they come to plea for an extension because of some ridiculous Olympic competition or other."

The always decisive, never political, Hanif Sarangatang defended and attacked the cutback. "We need to make financial concessions somewhere, and academics are really what's important...but, on the other hand, I don't want to give up my dancercise class either."

Proponents of the plan maintain that the gym space could be put to better use. "Our fine arts students, for example, could make use of the wall space for a new mural - especially now that the Pub has been defaced, er...I mean decorated," said one source in Scarborough's Administration who wouldn't go on record because she couldn't spell her name, but this reporter knows it rhymes with Moon Pope. "It's nice to know," she added, "the Dean Rection stands behind me."

Timeout Pallandi, Director of Phys. Ed. at Scarborough is enraged at the decision. "How can they do this to us?" he cried, "we just got our new volleyball posts!"

He asserts that athletics are vital to school spirit. "Just look at what U of T's great athletes, like Joyce what's-her-name... the one who swam around the lake... look how inspiring someone like that is.

Pallandi will accept the decision though, claiming that he needs the time off to shave anyway. "Who I really feel sorry for is Jaan" said Pallandi, referring to his department's Co-director. "Unless they make boinking an Olympic event, he's out of work."

The Women's Centre is livid. "Don't think that this whole issue is not another attempt by the patriarchal macho domination forces at this university attempting to assert their discrimination authoritarian male-ness," a Centre spokesman spokesentity stated. She was referring to the election of Mary Misasi as President and Mary Lafazanis as Vice-President of Scarborough College's Athletic Association. "It's just too convenient. Women get elected and then the whole rug gets yanked out from under them. "Tsk, tsk,tsk,...Roar."

Athletics at the campus are despondent. "Does this mean I'll have to go to class?!" asked Rob Moron, infamous Scarborough gym rat, and holder of the campus' lowest possible G.P.A. award for 1987-88.

"I think all of the attention that Dean Hugh G. Rection's getting is only swelling his head. That's what this whole funding thing comes down to. If we stop talking about it, I'm sure it will go away." quipped SCSC 1988/89 President Pat[illegible].

Creature Stalks Scarb Campus

by Jake Cast

A numbing unease hangs over the hallowed halls of Scarborough College. What could possibly be causing this fear that grips faculty and students alike? The truth is so weird, it belongs in a schlock "B" movie. A prehistoric creature lives in Highland Creek, stalking the halls of Scarborough College in the dead of the night.

Administration officials are tight-lipped about the whole affair, denying that the creature exists. Administration has released one statement to The Undergrund. The official line (borrowed from FDR) is "there is nothing to fear but fear itself."

I decided to get to the bottom of the affair, and asked the Campus Police for an explanation. The officer (who requested to remain unnamed) replied with a snear, "you're hurting son, go home and sleep it off."

From sketchy eyewitness accounts, The Undergrund has been able to compile this outline of the creature.

-it is about the size of a rhinoceros, with a long alligator-like tail

-it has great speed (has yet to be captured accurately on film)

-smells somewhat like a chemistry experiment gone wrong

-likes to root for cigarette filters in ashtrays, enjoying them immensely

-it is extremely heavy, has broken sections of the tile floors

One eyewitness, past student Fred Lightfoot, was visiting CSCR when he witnessed the creature late at night.

"Yeah, it was about 11 p.m. and I left the station to take a leak. I saw this huge shape waddling through the meeting place. Suddenly, the creature sensed my presence, turned its head to look at me and was gone in a flash. It was evil, had large red eyes, and smelt like the Don River." recounted Lightfoot.

Through some sneaking around, The Undergrund managed to see a copy of an internal administration memo which lists the steps administration has taken in an effort to trap or kill the creature.

-smoking has been outlawed in all areas of the college, except in high traffic areas such as the H-wing cafe and faculty lounges (apparently to cut the creature off its preferred food source - cigarette filters)

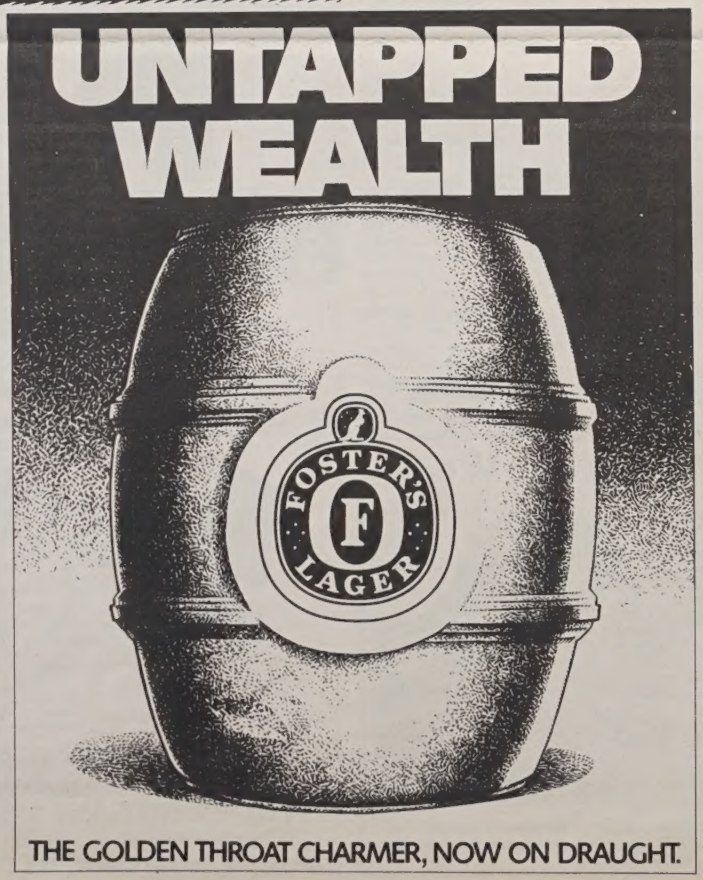
-installed attachment points for high-speed infra-red cameras around the college in an attempt to film the creature. To hide this, the college was closed after midnight to 6:30 a.m. for a recent period to students (this closure has only been recently lifted, so we can assume that administration was successful)

-dredged portions of Highland Creek, and built stone banks to the creek (apparently the creature had an underwater cave that it lived in, which now doesn't exist - being destroyed)

-adopted a "no-news policy" when queried about the creature by concerned students or the media

Efforts by administration have appeared to have succeeded as the creature has not been seen in over two weeks. The fear remains, though, and this reporter expects further sightings in the future.

Next time you come across broken tiles on the floor, you will know what caused it.



Buried Underground

Letter to the Editor:

Funny how some opinions never seem to surface in The Underground newspaper. Could it be that some opinions are better left underground.

This is the case involved.

The March 15th Underground issue, sure you remember that Ken Bowman issue, Kenny was defended by Saso, Johnstone, VN/88 and Leader. However as we understand from discussions with The Underground that Kenny appeared with a letter of apology which he decided not to print. We get the picture clearly Kenny.

Since Kenny can be defended by letters then he does not need to appologize(sic) for his bad handling of the racially unsafe issue. And The Underground is knowingly protecting 'someone who made racially unsafe statements. Good job Underground.

The Underground as a moral institution(sic) of justice on Scarborough Campus decided to print Kenny's defense knowing that he should not have been defended.

But that's not all The Underground went out of their way to do. When the hooded students tried to defend themselves and state their case against Kenny the rules of the Underground came into effect. The claims had to be substantiated. The hooded students defense had to be substantiated. How come Kenny's defense did not have to be substantiated.

We also learnt that the letters were shown to Kenny. Imagine private editorials being shown to other parties before being printed. Seems like an underground organization to us. Has The Underground rules and policies trully(sic) gone underground. Probably a double-standard.

Face the facts in the March 15th issue The Underground defended racially unsafe statements. Whether they had done this knowingly is up for the student body to decide.

The Underground staff has clearly taken Kenny's biased defense without question and is still defending them even when new facts come to light. The Underground staff did a prejudging of the hooded guys or is that word meant to be prejudice.

Poli-sci Prez

Letter to the Editor:

I would like to offer my support for Normala (Norma) Persaud who is running for President of the Scarborough College Political Science Student Association.

Norma Persaud worked hard continuously this year as Vice President of the Political Science Students Assoc. She worked hard over the past summer to plan many academic events. For example, Norma was able to get M.P. Paul McCrossan to speak on immigration.

Norma is also open to suggestions. When a student approached her, complaining that the time of many of the Political Science Assoc. events were held at inconvenient times, Norma approached several professors to correct the problem. The result was that Bob Kaplan, Offical Justice Critic, spoke to the POLA01Y class.

Various social events were also planned under Norma's leadership. The Political Student Association wine and cheese party was all well attended in the fall. Everyone enjoyed themselves at the dating game planned with the French Club. Also, Norma planned for a dinner to be held on April 4 for the Political Science Association.

Norma also showed her leadership abilities during the orientation weekend in which she acted as a leader. She was able to recruit several members during this weekend.

For the above reasons, I feel that Norma has the leadership abilities to act as President of the Political Science Association.

Sincerely,
Leslie Sparks
Political Science Association Member

Albers For President

Letter to the Editor:

As active students of Scarborough College we openly support John Albers as our choice for the position of Vice President-Finance.

The position of V.P.-Finance requires a good business background and ability. John is well qualified as he has successfully completed three years in the Commerce Specialist Program.

Being on a student government requires enthusiasm, drive and school spirit to work for the students. John has shown these qualities by helping organize the past two orientations, participating in every major function put on by SCSC, SAC and SCAA as well as running his own radio show on CSCR.

We feel John has the most experience, both in academics and also in knowing what Scarborough students want and need through his three years of involvement. Keep the spirit alive and vote for JOHN ALBERS for Vice President Finance.

Confused

Letter to the Editor:

I have been following the SCSC elections this year quite closely and I couldn't help but notice the candidate for VP-Finance Jonathan Silver. It is my understanding, Jon, that you are presently a First year student at Scarborough Campus with quite a lot of SCSC experience already behind you.

Tell me Jon, how does a First year student become Deputy to the V.P. of Finance or a member of the club funding board? I don't recall seeing you campaigning for either position last fall.

Isn't it possible that your experience gained has come about more from who you know as opposed to what you know at Scarborough Campus.

EDITORIAL

The Underground is proud to announce... Felix Tan as the Editor-in-chief for the 1988/89 academic year.

Felix hopes to provide Scarborough Campus with the best Underground ever. He is looking forward to working with his new staff and he encourages all other students who are interested in improving the Underground to come out and meet him as soon as possible!

Celebrate Ethnic Diversity

Despite the many valid criticisms of Scarborough Campus there are some very striking qualities which set it apart from most Canadian university campus'. In fact, a closer look will reveal the aspect of Scarborough which actually makes this campus a model upon which other communities may wish to follow. Students should recognize the special qualities of Scarborough Campus and take pride in them.

Outsiders who visit our campus are first impressed with the bold, controversial architecture. However, as they walk into the building they are struck by the incredibly diverse cultural composition of the student body.

Yes, believe it or not, our community here at Scarborough is an oasis, rich in ethnic variety, which is envied by people from all over the world.

Few university campus' can boast of the variety of ethnic cultures represented en masse at Scarborough. And fewer still can claim the relatively harmonious interaction between these cultures. A quick scan of the racial problems flaring in other universities and towns in other countries will prove that the stability of our racially enriched culture here at Scarborough is definitely worth being proud of. Simply note the composition of the large student groups on this campus (student residence village, The Underground, SCSC and the SCAA), and you will immediately see proof that people of varying ethnic backgrounds can live and work well together.

Students here often take this for granted. But the sound of different languages in the halls; the aroma of different foods in the cafe; and the ability to participate in conversations with people from other exotic countries, is precisely what makes Scarborough such an interesting place to study. In this respect, Scarborough Campus is anything but boring.

As an exercise in self indulgence and as a much needed diversion, Scarborough students should stand up and celebrate their cultural diversity.

Lousy Concerts

Letter to the Editor:

Speaking as a person who was unlucky enough to have attended both of the last two band appearances in the Meeting Place, I feel I must complain about the terrible lack of organization and consideration for those actually paying for these events.

It was bad enough that the P.A. system was shut off on Blue Rodeo when they tried to please the crowd with a nice, long encore, but the events of this last David Wilcox show were completely unacceptable. I will recap the events for those who were lucky enough to have missed it.

Tickets for the show clearly stated "DOORS OPEN AT 8:00 P.M." Ticket-holders who arrived on time were treated to an hour and fifteen minutes of listless waiting because the organizers were not prepared yet.

At this point the evening went from bad to worse. I don't know where SCSC found the rude, obnoxious bullies that worked security that evening, but I suspect that a local chapter of Satan's Choice needed work. These people had a serious attitude problem.

In my opinion they were unnecessarily rude and threatening. After our nice wait in the H-wing corridor, we were bullied in, four at a time, searched for some reason or another, and then brusquely asked for I.D. My friends and I were grabbed, shoved and generally pushed around by these thugs in 'Facilities' T-shirts throughout the evening.

Finally, after almost two hours of nonsense trying to get in to this great event, we find that there are only two people serving at the bar. The line-ups were at least ten minutes long for a drink.

Surprise, surprise, tempers flared and fights broke out, allowing the organizers to justify the overwhelming ratio of security to fans. But I put it to them that there would have been far fewer problems if you hadn't pissed everybody off in the first place.

I will personally be boycotting any further band appearances at the campus until SCSC smartens up, stops treating the students who elect them and pay for these events like children of second class citizens, and just generally organize the things properly!! I urge others to do the same.

Sincerely,
Robert Leighton

More Peace And Love!!

Letter to the Editor:

This is just a little note to describe how sick and tired (and I do mean tired) I am at reading letters to the editor that criticize other people. It seems that instead of working out issues that arise between people, letters are written and the problem goes unsolved.

One letter leads to a response, leading to another letter and so on. Lets quit the crap and deal with our problems directly. Reserve letters to the editor for real concerns, and try to promote peace, love and understanding at Scarborough College instead of this stab in the back degradation.

With Love,
Jeff Tavener

Celebrations For Co-Op

by Diedre Fisher

Co-operative education at Scarborough College is coming of age! During the first week of March, a special event was held to celebrate thirteen years of success in co-operative education at the University of Toronto. On March 8th, the Co-operative Programme in Administration sponsored a reception to honour a decade of alumni. Employers, students and faculty were treated to the inspiring testimonials of three recent graduates who have blazed successful career paths for themselves.

The Co-operative Programme in Administration, which was founded in 1975, offers students the opportunity to gain skills in both public and private sector management. Students study such fundamentals as commerce, economics, management principles and public policy. Eight four-month terms designed to give students the opportunity to apply their theoretical knowledge to working situations.

Students graduating from the Co-operative Programme in Administration have, without question, been provided with a richer educational experience than their counter parts in the commerce program. More importantly, they have gained a head start in the job hunt over students from purely academic programs. Graduates have consistently, over the last ten years, found appropriate jobs quickly and in many cases, have been permanently employed by their former co-operative employers. Nancy Yee is just such an example.

After an arduous and frustrating job search, Nancy finally landed permanent employment with Arthur Anderson and Co., a management consultant firm and previous co-operative employer. She attests that it was her four-month work placement with Arthur Anderson and Co. that gave her an opportunity to prove her competence and demonstrate her relavant skills on the job. Not only are the work terms beneficial for employers, who can hire bright, eager and dedicated students inexpensively and on a trial basis, but they also provide an invaluable experience for the student.

Bad Dream, Good Horror

by Tahira Zafar

"Just when you thought it was safe to close your eyes".

Whenever you hear the words "horror movie", you automatically think of two things: a mad crazed killer on the loose and/or explicit sex. Although Bad Dreams is a soon-to-be released horror film (on April 8), it's not one of those typical horror flicks with dozens of pointless killings.

In fact, Bad Dreams actually has a plot with some meaning to it. The main character is Cynthia (Jennifer Rubin of Nightmare on Elm St Part 3). Cynthia is the only surviving member of a cult, called Unity Fields, which commits a mass murder/suicide-by-fire.

After waking up from a coma induced by the traumatic demise of Unity Fields, Cynthia is place in a therapy group for people with borderline personality disorders to help her recall the events surrounding the murder/suicide tragedy. It is the horrifying flashbacks from Cynthia's memory which grips the audience in suspense and intrigue.

Naturally, the big question is whether or not Cynthia will give in to the demands of her spiritual leader and join the cult in its' attempt at eternal peace.

Bad Dreams was written and directed by Andrew Fleming. Says Fleming of the film, "'Bad Dreams' is not purely a horror movie. The bloody moments in the film are used for emotional effect, not just for shock - we wanted it to be disturbing as well as frightening..."

Already an award winner for three short films, you can be sure to see the talent of this newcomer protruding to the top of the motion picture industry.

Student Housing Criticized

by Christopher MacKenzie

The Political Science Association hosted a recent appearance by Cam Jackson, a member of the Conservative Party in the Ontario Legislature. Mr. Jackson is the Conservative critic for Colleges and Universities and is especially interested in student housing.

Through a Private Member's Bill (Bill 94) Jackson hopes to "prohibit discrimination by municipalities against unrelated persons occupying residential property". With the lack of availability and high cost of rental accomodation many students living off-campus choose to live together.

Six Ontario university cities (except Toronto) have passed by-laws limiting the number of unrelated persons living in the same dwelling. It is discriminatory mainly against students because there are no similar by-laws concerning related persons.

Jackson is against the universal rent control as it currently exists. He feels that universality should be replaced by helping those in need. He rationalizes that money can only be spent once and that high-income renters should not be subsidized.

While he is pleased that the government has increased funding to help universities cope with the increased number of grade 12 students coming to university this fall he is disappointed by the lack of a commitment which would enable a more secure future in provincial education. He feels that students must lobby harder if universities are to receive a higher priority with the provincial government.
